Prevas Expanding – New Office in Sandviken

Prevas has opened a new office in Sandviken. It is the company's 14th office in Sweden.

"We want to be in close proximity to our customers, so this is a natural and strategic step for Prevas. We have had a strong customer base in the region for over 20 years, with the Sandvik Group amongst others leading the way," says Majid Meshkintorreh, CEO of Prevas Gävle AB.

The Prevas office in Gävle opened in September 2010 with the vision of providing companies in the region with cutting edge expertise within industrial IT. Cooperation with Sandvik, for example, helped Prevas decide to set up an office in Sandviken; it is located in Sandbacka Park.

Swedish industry is faced with major challenges. No matter what businesses do, there is generally another player somewhere else in the world prepared to do the same thing, both quicker and less expensively. To survive and grow, companies are constantly forced to develop new and smarter products and production methods. Or to get help with the task. We do everything we can to find effective solutions for our customers. If we can contribute to increasing their level of competitiveness, we have achieved our goal – to create sustainable growth.
